Acknowledgments

This report was prepared by the Merger Unit Staff, under the general guidance of William H. Sprunk, Assistant Director for Financial Statistics, Bureau of Economics. Alice Villavicencio was responsible for the economic analysis, research, and statistical tabulations. She was assisted by Bessie Boyd, Richard Bison, Ann Borkowski Roland, K. Cheryl Nelson, David Hicks, and Kathryn Rock.

Although the Merger Unit Staff was ultimately responsible for the data gathering and contents of the report, John Hamilton, Allen Jefferson, and Robin Overholt provided valuable computer programming assistance.

Preface

This statistical report contains 1979 merger information. The data are presented in four sections: Overall Merger Series, Large Merger Series, Joint Venture Series, and Foreign Merger Series. The contents of each section are explained preceding the tables or listings shown for each series.

Because of limited resources, errors and omissions may have occurred. The Federal Trade Commission, therefore, welcomes your contributions for any corrections or additions to this report. If you provide us with additional information, please refer to the public source where you found the information.

All data and listings for the 1979 report are preliminary and subject to change. However, based on previous years' experience, the preliminary data closely reflect the final tabulations.

Summary

The number of full acquisitions completed during 1979 or pending at year's end decreased 2.3 percent relative to the 1978 total. There were 1,516 full acquisitions and mergers in 1979, compared to 1,551 in 1978. The number of partial acquisitions increased from 113 to 145, representing a 28.3 percent increase. This year, as in 1978, a plurality of acquired and acquiring firms were classified in the manufacturing sector.

The number of manufacturing and mining companies acquired in 1979 was 519, an increase of 1.0 percent over last year's figure of 514. The greatest numbers of acquired manufacturing firms were in the industries of nonelectrical machinery, electrical machinery, and food and kindred products, all accounting for 188 acquisitions. The smallest numbers were in tobacco manufacturers, petroleum and leather products, and furniture and fixtures.

Acquired firms that fell into the smallest asset class (under $1.0 million and unknown) accounted for the highest proportion (62.1 percent) of recorded full acquisitions, while the largest firms ($100.0 million and over) were the most active acquirers, accounting for 60.8 percent of all full acquisitions.

The Large Merger Series, which consists of acquisitions where manufacturing and mining firms with assets of $10.0 million or more were acquired, showed 97 acquisitions for the year 1979, a decrease of 14 over the revised 1978 figure. Assets of the acquired firms in 1979 totaled $12.9 billion, an increase of 20 percent over the 1978 figure.

Large conglomerate mergers remain important in terms of both number (87) and assets ($11.6 billion). Horizontal and vertical mergers sharply decreased to 10 in 1979.[1]

The greatest number of large mergers involved acquired firms in the smallest asset class ($10.0-$24.9 million). These companies accounted for nearly 27 percent of all large firms acquired in 1979. At the same time, acquiring companies in the largest asset class ($100.0 million and over) accounted for 81.2 percent of all large acquisitions.

Although the number of large mergers made by the 200 largest manufacturing firms decreased, the assets acquired increased, compared to the revised 1978 figures. In 1979, this group accounted for 44.9 percent of the acquired assets, while in 1978 it accounted for 45.0 percent of acquired assets.

The number of new joint ventures reported in 1979 was 85, compared to 114 in 1978. Nearly 45 percent of all new joint ventures formed were in manufacturing. Within the manufacturing sector, the majority of these ventures were in the chemical and electrical machinery industries, accounting for 14 of the 38 reported joint ventures in manufacturing.

The number of completed and pending acquisitions of foreign firms by American companies increased in 1979 to 143, with manufacturing companies being the predominant acquired and acquiring entities. Firms in the "services and others" category were second to manufactures in the acquiring group. As with the Overall and Large Merger Series, the largest corporations ($100.0 million and over) were the dominant acquirers, accounting for nearly 88 percent of all full foreign acquisitions.

The total number of American companies acquired by foreign companies increased to 211 in 1979. This represents a 17.9 percent increase over the 1978 figure. The total number of acquisitions (excluding partials) within the manufacturing sector again ranked highest in both the acquired (40.1 percent) and the acquiring (36.8 percent) groups. As with the other merger series, companies in the smallest asset class represented the largest proportion of acquired firms (47.8 percent), while the leading acquirers were firms in the largest asset class (64.3 percent).

Section I

Overall Merger Series

A. Introduction

This report, containing 1979 corporate merger and acquisition data, has four sections: Overall Merger Series; Large Merger Series; Joint Venture Series; and Foreign Merger Series. Section I contains the Overall Merger Series, which depicts acquisitions of all asset sizes in manufacturing, mining, wholesale and retail trade, services and others, and those companies whose industry classification is unknown. Also included in this series are 1979 large mergers (acquisitions of companies in the manufacturing and mining industries with assets of $10 million and over) and acquisitions of American companies by foreign companies. Both the large and the foreign mergers are described in more detail in section II and section IV, respectively.

Joint Ventures (section III) and Foreign Mergers, American companies acquiring foreign companies (section IV), are not included in the Overall Series.

Section I of this report includes as acquisitions those acquired companies which meet the following criteria:

1. The FTC must have jurisdiction over the industry to which the acquired company belongs.

   This excludes commercial banks, transportation entities such as railroads and airlines, and communication concerns such as radio and television stations.

2. The acquiring concern must acquire at least 10 percent of the acquired company's stock or assets.

   A 10- to 50-percent purchase is a partial acquisition. A 50.1-percent-and-over purchase is a whole or full acquisition.

3. The acquired company must be American.

4. The acquired company must be an independent company, a subsidiary or division of another company, or a division of a subsidiary.

The statistical tables and the acquisitions listed in the Overall Merger Series distinguish between completed acquisitions (those for which a completion date is known) and pending acquisitions (those for which a completion date is unknown).

The Overall Merger Series is compiled from various source materials, including Moody's Industrial Manual; Moody's Over the Counter Manual; Moody's Bank & Finance Manual; Moody's News Reports; Standard & Poor's Standard Corporation Reports; Standard & Poor's American, New York, and Over the Counter Stock Exchange Reports; The Wall Street Journal; The New York Times; Journal of Commerce; Dun & Bradstreet's Million Dollar and Middle Market Directories; company annual reports; listing applications to the New York Stock Exchange; FTC premerger notification information; and the Standard Industrial Classification Manual, 1972.

B. Tables--Overall Merger Series

The statistical tables in part B were compiled from both public and nonpublic data.

All tables in the Overall Merger Series, except table 10, contain 1979 merger data. This table shows the total number of completed acquisitions from 1972 to 1979 and is revised when the series is updated.

The revised number of whole acquisitions or mergers which occurred in 1978 was 1,551 (1,279 completed, 272 pending), while the preliminary total for 1979 stands at 1,516 (1,214 completed, 302 pending), representing a 2.3-percent decrease over the 1978 figure. The greatest merger activity involved firms engaged in both manufacturing and services and others. The number of manufacturing companies acquired in 1979 is 473, or 31.2 percent of all whole acquisitions (table 1). The number of partial acquisitions in 1979 was 145 (109 completed, 36 pending).

There were 712 acquiring companies classified in manufacturing and 406 classified in services and others, representing 47.0 and 26.8 percent respectively (table 2). These industries accounted for the largest number of acquiring firms in 1979, as they have for over half a decade.

Table 3 shows the total number of manufacturing and mining firms acquired in 1979 (519). In addition, this table provides a further breakdown of the manufacturing companies' major industry groups. Companies classified in the three two-digit groups of nonelectrical machinery (72), electrical machinery (67), and food and kindred products (49), together represented 39.7 percent of the 473 acquired manufacturing entities.

Table 4 shows that 350 or 67.4 percent of the manufacturing and mining acquisitions were made by other manufacturing companies. Firms classified in nonelectrical machinery (64), electrical machinery (46), food and kindred products (33), and chemicals (27) accounted for 32.8 percent of the manufacturing and mining acquisitions.

Table 5 breaks down the acquiring manufacturing companies into their major industry groups. There were 769 acquisitions made by manufacturing and mining companies in 1979. Of these, the vast majority, 713 (or 92.7 percent) were made by manufacturing companies. The most active acquiring groups in the manufacturing industry were nonelectrical machinery, electrical machinery, food and kindred products, and chemicals classifications, accounting for 49.5 percent of the manufacturing acquisitions.

In 1979, the number of acquisitions made by manufacturing and mining companies is shown in table 6 by industry of the acquired firms. Of these acquired companies, 330 (or 44.2 percent of the total) were in the manufacturing industry.

Table 7 is a matrix delineating in more detail the primary activity of the acquired and acquiring companies in 1979. The horizontal axis represents the industry of the acquired firms; the vertical axis, the industry of the acquiring firms. In each block, the top number represents completed acquisitions and the bottom number, pending acquisitions. If we use industry group 34 (Fabricated Metal Products) as an example, we can determine by reading down from the horizontal axis how many companies were acquired in this group (22 completed and 6 pending). Reading across from the vertical axis and down from the horizontal axis along Industry 34, we see what kinds of companies acquired firms classified in industry 34. Thus, we can see that there were 3 (2 completed, 1 pending) firms in Industry 34 that were acquired by members of that same group. The remaining 25 acquired companies were acquired by members of other industries, giving us a total of 28 acquired firms in Industry 34.

Acquired firms in the smallest asset class accounted for the highest proportion of recorded acquisitions. Acquired companies in the under-$1.0-million-and-unknown class numbered 941, or 62.1 percent of the total acquisitions shown in table 8. Asset figures were not available for many of the acquired companies in this category--most likely because the acquired firms were quite small.

Acquiring firms in the $100.0-million-and-over asset class (table 9) predominated, accounting for 922, or 60.8 percent of whole acquisitions.

Table 10 shows the number of completed acquisitions for the years 1972-79. These figures are usually revised annually as the series is updated. This year, however, data for 1976 through 1978 were updated.

C. Lists--Overall Merger Series

Part C includes four lists of the Overall Merger Series public data. Table 11 and 12 list the names and other data of the completed and pending whole acquisitions for 1979. Included in these tables are data for the acquired companies, both those whose assets were known and those whose assets were unknown. Table 13 lists the names and other data of the completed and pending partial acquisitions for 1979. Table 14, the parent/subsidiary list, shows the name of the subsidiary company that was acquired and its previous parent. The first three Overall Merger Series lists are arranged alphabetically by the name of the acquired company, while the parent/subsidiary list is arranged alphabetically by the name of the subsidiary company.

The following is a brief description of the items included in tables 11, 12, and 13:

Industrial classification code of the acquiring company (SIC)--When possible, a four-digit SIC code was assigned to the acquiring company, using the Standard Industrial Classification Manual, 1972, and Dun and Bradstreet sources. A slash (/) in the fourth space designates a foreign company.

Acquiring company name--This is the name of the company at the time of acquisition. If an acquisition was made through a subsidiary or division, the name of the parent company is reported as the acquiring company.

Industrial classification code of the acquired company (SIC)--An SIC code was assigned to the acquired company in the same manner in which it was assigned to the acquiring company, except when the company's primary classification was 6711 (holding company). In this case, an attempt was made to classify the company into its second primary line of business.

Independent, subsidiary, and division--The number in this column designates whether the acquired company is (1) an independent company, (2) a subsidiary of another company, (3) a division of another company, or (4) a division of a subsidiary of another company. If the acquired entity is a subsidiary of another company or a division of a subsidiary of another company, the name of the subsidiary and its previous parent company is shown in the parent/subsidiary list (table 14).

Whole or partial--The number in this column designates whether the acquisition was (1) whole, 50.1 percent or more acquired; or (2) partial, 10.0 to 50.0 percent acquired.

Percentages acquired--Percentages were given to partial acquisitions if the figures were known. These appear only on table 13.

Acquired company name--This is the name of the acquired company. If a subsidiary company was acquired, the name of the subsidiary appears. If a division was acquired, the name of the parent appears, followed by the name or description of the division acquired.

Date acquisition was completed--This appears in tables 11 and 13. It is the date (month/year) when the acquisition was consummated. This column is blank on table 13 if the partial acquisition is pending.

Section II

Large Merger Series

A. Introduction

This section provides tables and lists of acquisitions included in the Federal Trade Commission's statistical series, "Large Mergers in Manufacturing and Mining," for which data were publicly available. To be included in this series, a merger must involve an acquired company that is primarily engaged in manufacturing or mining and that had assets of at least $10 million at the time of acquisition. Acquisitions covered by the Large Merger Series are defined to include only those purchases or transfers of ownership of a company, subsidiary, or company division that represent a merger of two firms previously under separate control. Transfers that constitute only corporate reorganizations or the purchase of stock not leading to a majority ownership interest are excluded. Transactions involving the acquisition of a company by an individual or group of individuals, or where an asset figure is unknown but the consideration paid is over $10 million, are not included in the series. The Large Merger Series is revised each year. The same sources are used in compiling this series as are used for the Overall Merger Series. However, because all manufacturing corporations (and, since 1974, all mining corporations) with assets of $10 million or more are covered on a continuing basis by the Commission's Quarterly Financial Report Series, the Large Merger Series, unlike the Overall Merger Series, is believed to be quite comprehensive. It is revised each year when the series is updated.

All but four of the tables in part B provide detail only on acquisitions for which data were publicly available. Aggregate figures for acquisitions for which the data were not publicly available are provided in footnotes to the tables. The table formats are the same as they have been during the last few years.

B. Tables--Large Merger Series

This section provides 13 tables and a chart characterizing mergers that comprise the Large Merger Series. The tables are a statistical summarization of the entire series. Tables 15 and 18 through 22 show the number of large mergers and the value of acquired assets by year, industry of acquired company, type of acquisition, asset size of acquired company, and asset size of acquiring company. Tables 16 and 23 through 25 report the assets of large acquisitions as a percentage of the assets of all manufacturing and mining corporations, the number of large acquisitions accounted for by the top 200 manufacturing corporations of 1978, the number and assets of large acquisitions compared to all large manufacturing and mining corporations, and acquired assets compared with new investment. Table 26 lists those acquisitions involving acquired assets exceeding $100 million.

All tables except 16, 17, 24, and 25 are based only on mergers for which the data were publicly available. The exclusion of nonpublic acquisitions does not alter the trends reflected in the tables. As can be seen in table 17, the extent to which data on acquisitions were publicly available is directly related to the size of the acquired company. Nearly 93 percent of acquired companies with assets of $100 million or more are included in the report for the period 1948-79, while 71.9 percent of mergers in the smallest acquired company assets class are included. For the 31-year period, 77.5 percent of the number of large mergers, representing 87.8 percent of the total acquired assets, are listed in the report.

The Large Merger Series is revised each year when new data become available. The revised figure for the number of large mergers in 1978 is 111--one more than previously published figure. The preliminary number for 1979 shows a decrease to 97 acquisitions. Assets acquired in 1979 totaled $12.9 billion (table 15 and chart I) and were 20.6 percent higher than the revised figure of $10.7 billion in 1978.

Table 16 indicates the percentage the assets of large company acquisitions represent of all manufacturing and mining corporations. This figure increased from 1.14 in 1978 to 1.36 in 1979.

Table 18 shows the number of mergers and the value of assets acquired, by the industry of the acquired company. In 1979, nonelectrical machinery exhibited the highest number of acquired firms. For the period 1948-78, companies in the nonelectrical machinery, food and kindred products, and electrical machinery industries were the most actively acquired firms.

Conglomerate mergers increased from 76 in 1978 to 87 in 1979, representing 89.7 percent of the large-merger total. The asset share accounted for by conglomerate mergers increased from 56.4 percent in 1978 to 90.4 percent in 1979. In terms of both number and asset proportions, conglomerate mergers continue to be of importance. The number of horizontal and vertical mergers decreased to 10 in 1979, representing 10.3 percent of all large mergers.

By far the greatest number of large mergers involved acquired firms that fell into the $25-$49.9 million asset class (table 21). Acquisitions of companies in this asset class accounted for nearly 28 percent of all the 1979 large mergers but only 7.2 percent of the acquired assets. Acquisitions recorded in the $10-$24.9 million class showed a significant decrease, while the other categories remained relatively stable.

The largest corporations continue to be the most active acquirers of large manufacturing and mining firms (table 22). A little more than 81 percent of all large acquisitions were made by companies with assets of $100 million or more. Companies with $1.0 billion or more in assets made up 49.4 percent of all the large acquisitions and 61.3 percent of the assets for this same period.

In 1979, the leading 200 manufacturing firms, ranked by 1978 total assets, accounted for 26.1 percent of all large acquisitions and 45.0 percent of the acquired assets (table 23). Both the number and assets of these large acquisitions decreased slightly, compared to 1978 figures.

Table 24 shows the number and asset value of large manufacturing and mining acquisitions compared to all large manufacturing and mining corporations. As can be seen from this table, the total assets of acquired firms in manufacturing and mining for 1979 are higher than those of previous years, including the peak years of 1968 and 1969.

Table 25 shows the large merger assets acquired as a percentage of total new investment in manufacturing and mining. The preliminary 1979 figure of 19.1 percent is higher than the revised 1978 figure of 16.3 percent.

C. Lists--Large Merger Series

This section provides three lists. Table 26 lists those acquisitions from 1948 to 1979 where the acquired firms had assets of $100 million and over. Table 27 provides publicly available information on large mergers (acquired firms with assets of $10 million or more) for the period 1948-79. Both of these tables are arranged by year and within year, alphabetically by acquired company name. Table 28 lists the complete names of both the acquiring and acquired companies for 1979 mergers.

NOTE: Newspaper mergers were excluded from the series prior to the first quarter of 1969, in order to be consistent with coverage of the FTC's Quarterly Financial Report for Manufacturing Companies.

Following is a brief explanation of definitions and codes used to identify information on individual acquisitions. The items are discussed in order of appearance in table 27.

Industrial classification code of the acquiring company (SIC)--Until 1970, the acquiring company was assigned the three-digit industry code number used by the Securities and Exchange Commission whenever possible. These numbers were based upon the Standard Industrial Classification. When a firm could not be found in the SEC directory, the SIC industry designation taken from Dun & Bradstreet volumes was assigned. In 1970, the SEC "Enterprise Code" numbers were substantially altered, and industries were grouped together so that a close relationship between these and the SIC numbers could no longer be maintained. Thus, beginning with 1970 acquisitions, all industry code data were taken from Dun & Bradstreet, with the designated primary four-digit industry number being the one listed. When a holding company SIC (6711) was shown as the primary classification, an attempt was made to determine the main business activity of the company, although many companies are so diversified that a single designation has little meaning. Also, for some companies, there are insufficient data available on their sales at either the four- or three-digit level. In these instances, companies were assigned a two-digit number with an "X" used to designate the third and/or fourth digits.

Acquiring company name--This is the name of the company at the time it made the acquisition. When the acquisition was made through a substidiary or a division, the name of the parent company is listed.

Acquiring company assets--The figures listed are the total assets of the acquiring company for the most recent available fiscal year ending prior to the acquisition. See "Year of asset figure" below for further details. Figures are in millions of dollars.

Year of asset figure--The assets shown for the acquiring company were valued as of the end of the fiscal year identified in this column.

Extent of acquisition, whole or partial--The number "1" indicates a whole acquisition, which is defined as the purchase of virtually all the assets or a stock interest leading to more than 50 percent ownership interest in the acquired company. The number "2" denotes a partial acquisition, which means that a division, a subsidiary, or some other operating unit of another company has been acquired. A stock purchase resulting in ownership of 50 percent or less was not counted as either a whole or partial acquisition.

Industrial classification code of the acquired company--As in the case of the acquiring firm, an attempt was made to classify the acquired company into a primary four-digit industry. For firms too diversified to be classified at the four-digit level, a three-digit or a two-digit industrial classification number was assigned.

Acquired company name--This is the name, usually an abbreviation, of the acquired company. In the case of a partial acquisition, particularly a division, the name of the division is preceded by the name of the parent company. For 1976 and later years, the division's name precedes the parent company's name.

Acquired company assets--This figure is the total assets of the acquired company or, in the case of a partial acquisition, the value of the assets acquired. Again, assets are in millions of dollars.

Year of asset figure--The assets shown for the acquired company are as of the end of the fiscal year identified in this column.

How acquired--Beginning in 1966, information was collected on whether the acquisition was made for securities or for cash. As "S" code in the "how acquired" column stands for "securities" and means that the acquiring company exchanged its stock, debentures, warrants, etc., for an ownership interest in the acquired firm. A "C" stands for "cash" and indicates that the transaction was made directly for cash, or that the acquiring company paid cash for a controlling (more than 50 percent) stock interest in the acquired firm, e.g., through a tender offer.

Consideration paid--This figure, which is also expressed in millions of dollars, is the publicly stated amount paid by the acquiring company in terms of securities, cash, or a combination of the two.

Date acquisition was completed--This is the date (month, day, and year) on which the acquisition was consummated.

Type of acquisition--An attempt has been made to determine the primary economic relationship between the acquiring and acquired companies. The categories, listed below, are mutually exclusive. Each acquisition is classified into the one best describing the principal relationship. This means that for acquisitions where more than one relationship existed prior to the merger, the classification indicates the relationship judged most significant.

> Horizontal mergers are indicated by a "1." A merger is horizontal when the companies involved produce one or more of the same, or closely related, products in the same geographic market.

Vertical mergers are denoted by a "2." A merger is vertical when the two companies involved had a potential buyer/seller relationship prior to the merger.

Conglomerate mergers are classified into three subcategories: product extension, market extension, and other.

Product extension mergers are indicated by a "3." A merger is considered to be product extension in type when the acquiring and acquired companies are functionally related in production and/or distribution but sell products that do not compete directly with one another. An example of a product extension merger would be a soap manufacturer acquiring a bleach manufacturer.

Market extension mergers are denoted by a "4." A merger is considered to be market extension in type when the acquiring and acquired companies manufacture the same products, but sell them in different geographic markets. An example of a market extension merger would be a fluid milk processor in Washington acquiring a fluid milk processor in Chicago.

Other conglomerate mergers are indicated by a "5." This category involves the consolidation of two essentially unrelated firms. An example would be a shipbuilding company buying an ice cream manufacturer.

New profit of the acquired company--This figure is the full year's net profit after taxes for the last fiscal year prior to acquisition. Profits of the acquired company are expressed in millions of dollars.

Table 28 is included in order to make clearer the abbreviated names used in table 27 for the large 1979 acquisitions. The list is arranged alphabetically by acquired company.

The large mergers for 1979 are also included in the Overall Merger Series and parent/subsidiary list in section I.

Section III

Joint Venture Series

A. Introduction

The data contained in part B (tables) and part C (lists) of this section are for joint ventures meeting the following criteria: (1) the joint venture represents the formation of a new company and (2) at least one American company is a participant. Joint ventures operating either domestically or in a foreign country are included in this series. Because there was a lack of general information on joint ventures, the data presented are for the number of joint ventures recorded; thus the possibility exists that some of the joint ventures were never consummated. The source materials used for collecting data for this series are the same as those used for the other series.

B. Tables--Joint Venture Series

Table 29 shows the number of new joint ventures recorded by industry for 1979. Table 30 is a summary of the number of joint ventures recorded for the period 1972-79. The figures in this table are subject to revision each year, as the series is updated.

The number of new joint ventures recorded in 1979 is 85, a decrease over the 1978 figure of 114 (tables 29 and 30). Companies in manufacturing accounted for 38, or 44.7 percent of the total joint ventures recorded. There were 47 joint ventures in nonmanufacturing, representing the remaining 55.3 percent.

The category of "unknown" joint ventures refers to those for which classification codes could not be assigned. For counting purposes, these ventures were placed into broad categories of manufacturing and nonmanufacturing.

C. Lists--Joint Venture Series

Table 31 lists new joint ventures and the companies participating in them. The list is arranged in joint venture number order. The following is a brief explanation of what appears on the list:

Joint venture number--Each joint venture was assigned an identification number. The same number appears for companies participating in the joint venture.

Card number--The card number for the joint venture (newly formed company) listed is always "0." The card number for the participating companies listed is always consecutive.

Industrial classification code (SIC)--An SIC was assigned to the joint venture if the business of the venture was known. The SIC for the participating company was derived from the same sources that were used for the other merger series.

New name--Whenever possible, the name of the joint venture appears in this column. If a name was not available, N/A (not available) appears. When this occurs, a description of the venture's business is given.

Participating companies--These are the names of the participants in the joint venture. If a participating company is a subsidiary, the name of the parent company appears.

Percent share--This is the percentage portion each participating company owns in the joint venture.

Section IV

Foreign Merger Series

A. Introduction

The Foreign Merger Series section presents acquisition data on foreign firms acquired by American companies and American entities acquired by foreign firms. Data on the latter have in the past been and continue to be included in the Overall Series. However, this year the data have been extracted and compiled into listings showing the names of American entities acquired by foreign companies. This information is contained in tables 45 through 47.

The "Foreign Merger" series includes those acquisitions in which the acquiring company or its parent is American and the acquired company is an independent foreign company or a foreign subsidiary or division of either an American or foreign company. In addition, partial acquisitions (where less than 50.1 percent is acquired), data on acquisitions of all asset sizes, and acquisitions of companies not included in the Overall Merger Series (e.g., banks and transportation companies) are included in the Series. The major source materials used in collecting data on foreign acquisitions are the same as those employed for the other series in this report, with the addition of such publications as Jane's Major Companies of Europe, Fortune's Directory of the 500 Largest Industrial Companies Outside the U.S., and Dun and Bradstreet's International Directories.

B. Tables

The numbers of foreign acquisitions (completed and pending) made by American firms, by industry of acquired and acquiring companies are shown in tables 32 and 33. The preliminary number of acquisitions (including partials) for 1979 is 143 (99 completed and 44 pending), an 11.2 percent decrease from the 1978 figure. Over 84 percent (121) of the 1979 "foreign mergers" were whole (over 50.0 percent) acquisitions, while only 22 (18 completed and 4 pending) were partially acquired. Of these, manufacturing companies were predominant in both the acquired (44.8 percent) and acquiring (60.8 percent) categories. Firms in chemicals were the most frequently acquired, accounting for 16 of the 64 manufacturing acquisitions (table 32). Companies in chemicals (30) and nonelectrical machinery (14) continued to be the most frequent acquiring companies in 1979 (table 33), as in 1978.

As in previous years, the largest corporations in the Foreign Merger Series dominated as acquiring companies. For both completed and pending acquisitions (excluding partial mergers), firms with assets of $100.0 million and over accounted for over 71.9 percent of the total number (table 34). The second most active group of acquirers was enterprises in the $50.0-to-$99.9-million asset class.

Table 35 is a summary table providing figures for the number of completed foreign acquisitions, 1972-79. The figures in this table are subject to revision each year as the series is updated.

Tables 40 through 43 are extracted from the 1979 Overall Merger Series acquisitions, both full and partial, of American companies made by foreign companies. Among the full acquisitions, 40.1 percent of the acquired companies were in manufacturing, with the most frequently acquired being in the nonelectrical machinery, food and kindred products, and chemicals categories. Manufacturing companies were eminent among acquiring companies, composing 36.8 percent of the full acquisitions (table 41). The most active acquiring firms were those classified in chemicals.

C. Lists--Foreign Merger Series

This part of this series provides listings of foreign companies acquired by American companies and of American companies acquired by foreign companies. All these listings are arranged alphabetically by acquired-company name. Tables 36 through 39 contain data on the former, and tables 45 through 47 contain data on the latter.

Table 36 lists acquisitions completed during 1979. Table 37 lists acquisitions pending at year's end. Table 38 lists partially acquired entities. And table 39 lists the acquired subsidiary and its parent. Tables 45 through 47 contain information extracted from the Overall Merger Series (tables 11-13).

The following is a brief description, in order of appearance, of the data contained in tables 36 through 38:

Industrial classification code of the acquiring company--The acquiring company was assigned the first three digits of a four-digit SIC code based upon Dun and Bradstreet sources. If this was not possible, a two-digit SIC code was assigned.

Acquiring company names--This is the name of the company at the time of acquisition. If an acquisition was made through a subsidiary or division, the name of the parent company is reported as the acquiring company.

Industrial classification code of the acquired company--The number in this column designates the status of the acquired company, as (1) an independent company, (2) a subsidiary of another company, (3) a division of another company, or (4) a division of a subsidiary of another company. If the acquired entity is a subsidiary of another company or a division of a subsidiary of another company, the names of the subsidiary and its previous parent are given in the parent/subsidiary list (table 39).

Acquired company name--This is the name of the acquired company. If a subsidiary company is acquired, the name of the subsidiary appears. If a division is acquired, the name of the parent appears followed by the name or description of the division. For example, McArthur Chemical/Perk refers to the acquisition of the Perkins Adhesives Division of McArthur Chemical Co., Ltd.

Country of acquired company--This is the country (sometimes abbreviated) in which the acquired company is located.

Extent of acquisition, whole or partial--If 50.1 percent or more of the acquired company, subsidiary, or division is acquired, the number "1" appears in this column, designating a whole acquisition. If the acquisition results in less than 50.1-percent ownership, the number "2" appears, designating a partial acquisition.

Date acquisition was completed--This is the date (month/year) on which the acquisition was consummated. The date appears only in table 36.

Table 39 is the parent/subsidiary list for the Foreign Merger Series. It provides the name of the subsidiary acquired and its previous parent company.
